Southern Botanical's Adam Pickens teaches students how to plant their "Primrose Patch."

March 25, 2014 - McKinney, TX - Southern Botanical's Adam Pickens had a wonderful time teaching over 70 children at the Primrose School of Eldorado how to plant their "Primrose Patch". The students had germinated seeds in the classroom and were excited to plant them outside. They learned about preparing the soil and the proper techniques for taking their freshly sprouted seeds and successfully transplanting them to the beds prepared outside on the school grounds. They loved wearing their colorful green Southern Botanical hard hats as well!

We are grateful to be able to give back to our community!
